

I had the opportunity to capture Tim Frain working yesterday, I love the stories that photography has to share- behind the scenes work to keep our lineman safe out in the field and the lights on..

There are many layers involved in the powerline trade, The essence of Hundseth for me is family, community, team work and standing as one, remembering that we are all connected—From the managers to the administration department, from lineman to mechanics, from Human Resources to parts runners, from owners to safety, each and every layer within Hundseth plays a vital role in what we do here.
